SUMMARY

I got in programming at my 13, first program was 'Hello World' on C++ (That was difficult to write it without syntax errors) after that I started with HTML and CSS on codecademy. By the age of seventeen It was just a hobby, after seventeen I decided to become developer, with my friend we started learning Java (when first levels on Javarush was free). When I was eighteen I got on EPAM Java course after this course I was defending my project when started quarantine. Then I started looking for any job opportunity, but at that time was only one vacancy for Full Stack Java Developer so I started learning JavaScript and it seemed more interesting than Java
